

Guess What... We're All Wizards at LHHS!

written by Aleksis Akerlind, a junior at Santa Margarita Catholic High School

Step into a world of spells, wands, and wizardry, but with a hilariously unexpected twist. Forget everything you know about the "chosen one"; this isn't about him. Puffs at Laguna Hills High School invites audiences to relive seven chaotic years at a certain magical school, told from a fresh and delightfully comedic perspective.

The story begins with a voice that commands attention: Joseph Mulrooney as the Narrator. With crisp diction, a charming British accent, and impeccable comedic timing, Mulrooney doesn't just tell the story; he lives it. His witty interactions with the audience and perfectly timed entrances make him the glue that holds this whirlwind of magic together.

Of course, what's a wizarding tale without an iconic trio? Enter Wayne Hopkins (Parker Hambrock), the lovable underdog; Oliver Rivers (Jefferson Hall-Diaz), the brainy "nerd"; and Megan Jones (Mia Pedroza), the angsty rebel with heart. Their contrasting personalities spark endless laughs and heartfelt moments as they stumble through spells, self-discovery, and friendship. Watching their bond grow is as heartwarming as it is hilarious.

Julian Fisher shines as Cedric, the charismatic golden boy of the Puffs. His charm and comedic timing make him a crowd favorite, until he flips the script and transforms into "Voldy." Fisher's improvised antics as the Dark Lord, weaving through the audience, are nothing short of hysterical and showcase his versatility.

The ensemble of Puffs delivers nonstop entertainment, each character bursting with quirks and energy. Their rallying cry, "We are not a threat! Please be our friend!" is both hilarious and oddly relatable. Mia Gasca brings Leanne to life with unstoppable energy, unpredictable commitment, and irresistible comedy. From wobbling on one foot like it's a heroic quest to shouting "WE'RE ALL WIZARDS!" with glee, Gasca's vibrant presence turns Leanne into a scene-stealing force of pure Puff pride.

Behind the magic, Amelia Blanchi and Dylan Welsh conjured an impressive 185 props! From fortune-teller-style sorting hats to hand-made spell books and giant snake puppets, their work brought the wizarding world to life with creativity and flair.

Costumes, led by Ava Ismande and Belle Ruppe, were equally enchanting. Each piece was tailored to perfection, like Bippy's (Kaleo Leite) potato sack ensemble, which allowed him to dance with joyful abandon.

So, grab your broomstick, polish your wand, and head on over to Laguna Hills High School for a spellbinding night of laughter, heart, and pure Puff pride!
